It's very windy.

It takes 2 hours by car.

I've never done that.

I've worked there for five years.

I want to buy something.

I want to contact our embassy.

I want to send this package to the United States.

I want to show you something.

I went to the supermarket, and then to the computer store.

My car isn't working.

Nobody is helping us.

Nobody is there right now.

One like that.

Open the door.

Open the window.

Pick up your clothes.

Please.

Please count this for me.

Please tell her John called.

Please tell me.

Please wait for me.

She's going with me tomorrow.

Some books.

Someone does that for me.

Someone is coming.

Sorry, I don't have a pencil.

Start the car.

Take me downtown.

Tell him that I need to talk to him.

That car over there is mine.

That looks old.

That's a good school.

That's her book.

That's not enough.

The car is fixed.

These books are ours.

The TV is broken.

They haven't met her yet.

They're planning to come next year.

They're waiting for us.

This room is a mess.

Those men are speaking English.

What color is that car?

What do you think of these shoes?

When would you like to meet?

Where does your wife work?

Where is Main Street?

Where is my shirt?

Where is the bus station?

Which road should I take?

You're right.

Your house is very nice.
